That all seeds sold by us shall prove to be a. represented, to the extent that should they not do so, we will replace them, or send other seeds to the same value. But we cannot guarantee the crop any further than the above offer, as there are so many causes which operate unfavourably in the germination of seeds in a tropical climate, over which we have no control. Among the causes of failure may be mentioned unfavourable weather, which is one of the most important. The soil may be in proper condition when the seed is planted, but the weather which fillows may be too wet, which will cause the seed to rot; or it may be too hot and dry, which idestroys the germ before it shows itself. The soil may also be unfavourable for the variety of seed planted. And lastly, the seeds may be and are frequently destroyed by vermin of various kinds. Such occurrences are beyond the power of man to prevent, and for which we cannot be responsible.

Smith then announced the withdrawal of the bill. That explains Reuter's telegram somewhat.

MR. Robinson is innovating a good deal, magisterially. He is going in strongly for one cent, fifty cent, dollar, and five dollar fines, with short periods of impresonment in default of payment. There is a good deal of house sense about these small fines, in this way- 1. n offender-a sampan-man, sav-is fined $5" or a month" he will go to gool, because he will be kept just as well there and he will save five dol'ars. But he will pay a fifty-cent or dollar fine, and won't swell the number of inmates in the "Queen's Hotel," Still, his Worship ought to make the ilternative heavier, or he will fall short of his very worthy object-that, of punishing without demoralising.

AT the meeting of the Sanitary Board to-morrow. the following will be the Orders of the day :-1. Correspondence concerning the enforcement of the draininge Bye-Laws. 2. Mr. Francis will move.-

1. That the Sanitary Surveyor be directed to make all inspections of drains personally and not by deputy.

2. That the Sanitary Surveyor, when about to inspect drains, give notice to the owner or to the architect of the time when he proposes to make the inspection.

3. That the Sanitary Surveyor report to the board fortnightly all work done by him as Sanitary Surveyor.

A NETHERLAND India exchange says: - Malaris prevails in Borneo to such an extent, that even after the clearing of jungle and forest and drainage of soil, no change for the better is visible. The absence of good and pure drinking water is also very serious. Wells produce water during the season, and during the remainder of the year one must supply the want by river water. Newly arrived coolies have to go through a course of malaria, and for a long time afterwards. if partially cured, suffer from beri-beri and general exhaustion. The mortality is alarming. Borneo will get such a rame that it will be next to impossible to get coolies. Those now to be had for Borneo are simply the refuse of the worst class of Chinese labourers, and it is only position ble to engage them by false pretensions and absurd promises. THE AH YON LIBEL CASE.

At the Police Court this afternoon, before Mr. Robinson, the criminal action for libel brought by Lenng Van Shan, better known as Ah Yon, against Lak Pak Shek, contractor, 14 Cross Street, came up for hearing, Mr. Francis, Q.C., instructed by Mr. Wilkinson, prosecuted, and Mr. Webber defended.

He desired to add to the charge that under section 7, in respect to the publication, alleging knowledge. It was a case, of course, which that Court could only deal with with a view to committing it for trial, as it was one in which the Court had no summary jurisdiction. The plaintiff was a large compradore, ship charterer, and general trader, his business name being Ah Yon.

Mr. Webber interrupted-He took objection to the summons; it simply said that his client had "maliciously published a certain defamatory libel, knowing the same to be false, concerning one Leung Yan Shan, contrary to section 6 of Ordinance V," &c. He contended that the defendant should have been supplied or served with a copy of the information, setting forth the exact words, so that he might know if it was a libel or not that was complained of. It was impossible to answer the charge as at present vaguely set forth. It was usual in all cases tosupply particulars, as he could shew by two cases commenced in that very Court-the Hon. 7. M. THE HONGKONG AND SHANGHAI BANK.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE " HONGKONG TRANSPIL" Sir. -- As a shareholder in the above Corporation I was present at the half yearly meeting his day last week, and intended, before this, to ask you for your valuable space for a few remarks on the subject, but opportunity has failed me

I think sir, we are justified in expecting from the Chairman of the Court of Directors of our great local institution, at its half-yearly meetings,

something more than we got in the sprech made by Mr. Forbes. His delivery is, to say the least, far from impressive ; nevertheless his 'want of eloquence-in which he differs from so many of his country men is his misfortune, not his fault; in Hongkong-are chiefly sensible and liberalbut it was the matter, and not the hanner of his | minded men of business who are most unlikely speech to which I think exception can fairly be taken. It contained absolutely nothing of interest beyond the barest of allusions to the Lyons loss; and the registration of the Bank at Manila. in fact, so destitute of matter to refer to did he appear to be, that he had actually to treat us to a rechauff of the information fully set forth in the report itself, as to Mr. Jackson having taken over the management of the Bank in London, and the association with him of Mr. Cameron, Surely the shareholders may expect on such an occasion some remarks worthy of it, some sketch of banking affairs generally and their bearing on the Bank's affairs for the period of our great Bank, to which, for some time past, under review, something more nearly approaching | public attention has been gathering and growing. the speeches of the Chairmen of the great London Banks and Companies. But no, there was nothing, absolutely nothing, of such a nature. All this was astonishing, but it was when Mr. Forbes came to answer the criticisms of Mr. Praser-Smith that astonishment in my mind became, I had almost said, shame and humiliation. For what did we see? An undignified bandying of words, lame excuses rather than explanations, and an evident disposition to sit upon and slight any free expression of opinion; and I venture to assert that there was hardly a man present at that meeting, including the Directors and Chief Manager, who did not keenly | thing it has now, but grasping all fresh business feel the inadequate manner in which the Bank | that it can see a safe and honest profit was represented by its Chairman. Possibly we in. Already opposition of various sorts is may not all be prepared to go the whole length talked of, greater facilities are demanded of Mr. Fraser-Smith's conclusions; possibly the situation and will come, and it some of us may think he was immed rate, but that there was much truth and commonsense in his criticisms, I don't think anybody will deny, Take the matter of the Lyons loss; the reply by Mr. Forbes amounted to a feeble platitude that in all businesses there are losses, and that in any case this loss could not be helved, as the agent held the Bank's power of attorney and consequently it was at his: mercy! Not a word as to any means being devised to prevent repetitions of this disastrous affair, of more stringent orders being issued to place responsibility, or other explanation and assurances of a similar nature. In fact, we are left to infer that no steps can be taken-nothing done-which I for one, should be very sorry to believe for a moment, and I rest confidently in the belief that the Executive of the Bank has long ago taken such precautions as will at least make it more than improbable that we shall ever again be subject to such monstrous losses! . If we are fora moment to accept the propositions laid down by Mr. Forbes, then I say that, painful as it it would be, it is the bounden duty of the Court of Directors to make an example of Mr. Morel for the benefit of the Bank's other agents, by criminally prosecuting him, for, even on the meagre facts stated, a clearer case of fraudulent misappropriation of funds has never occurred. Mr. Forbes tells us that full details are not yet | many new Companies, chiefly industrial, that | panied by here "anthrophagous" son, sallied to hand. I hold that as soon as these are deserve the Bank's support, perfectly sound at forth to tramp to the neighboring town, received, the shareholders are entitled to bottom, with reliable Directorates and so on. All but on arriving at a place surrounded on explanations on the points at present in these make for it increased transactions, and it is every side by the tall rushes of a marsh, doubt. I cannot bring myself to believe that simply folly to put such down to pure gambling. Tung suddenly drew a knife and, having killed had the Lyons accountant done his duty, the The Bank's wisdom is to take due advantage of his mother, actually disembowelled her and then greater part of the loss and all the consequent all these increased transactions, duly safeguard- taking out her heart-and liver, washed them in depreciation of stocks, with its attendant misery | ing it elf, and for this increased business, the a stream hard by. The enormous sum of one and a quarter millions of raised; the terms I need not discuss here; that went out to buy some samshu, to wash down francie in not have been withdrawn all at once; as far as gan be gathered, it was spread over fully but of one thing I am sure, that the new issue a month, and yet, aithough the agency was within a few minutes of the controlling branch (London) by wire, and only twenty-four hours by actual distance, nothing is known of the matter until the accounts for that month reach London! I a value of $340 to $350 per share is too high, and

I am sure it would tend to throw drawings took place without equivalent security | the shares into many hands which at present being deposited, and under these extraordinary are unable to touch them, and I hold that the etiquette or mistaken loyalty to his chief on the interest of the Bank. I commend these suggespart of the accountant would be nothing short of | tions to the attention of all those interested in this moral cowardice, which should receive the strong- institution, and I urge them strongly to agitate Mr. Francis, in opening the case, said that the heartbreaking to believe that bad the account- carried.

If the accountant could not bring himself to take | myself: as wanting therein, though I readily should have weighed with him, except the Bank's | who can speak, would only say what they are this most disastrous matter is simply this, that and grumbling at the Club, or in the market, it the Executive of the Bank are greatly to blame, and as honourable men they should have freely admitted it. As far back as November last, as stated by the Chairman, Mr. Morel's account was known to be wrong and he had been warned, and what I want to know is, was nothing done then, or subsequently, to take precautions by private. supervision from London, or by other means that the wisdom of the Directors and Managers could surely suggest? The character of Mr. Morel was known, and even if all had been quiet in France commercially, and the Management were sure of the soundness of his financial position; no liberties with the Bank's funds should have been allowed him. But what was the state of French finance at that time? The doings of the Copper Syndicate, the Société des Metaux, and the general gambling on the Bourse, are too recent and painful to dwell upon. These things at all events should have drawn the attention of the Management to their French branch, and then we should not be suffering here in Hongkong as we are doing to-day!

Then, as regards the Manila trouble, I certainly agree with Mr. Fraser-Smith that the Bank had no reason to be so self-congratulatory because, after all the mischief was done, they had seen the necessity of registration. The Charterthe case. There were also the cases of Ragina | there is no reasonable doubt in shareholders' dit of the Bank's Executive. Further remarks on the subject of losses referred to by Mr. Frasertruth in his criticisms; but as regards the reply of the Chairman to the criticism about the form of presenting the half-yearly accounts, I think there is not one shareholder who would not admit that at present they are bare and bald al most to the point of absurdity. I consider it to be a most feeble proposition laid down by the Chairman, that if the shareholders want the accounts presented more fully, they must demand it, band together to carry it, go to all the excessive trouble and unpleasantness of taking action to call an extraordinary meeting, and so forth, No, they are not likely to do that, but if Mr. Forbes and the rest of the members of the Court of Directors think that they are satisfied, I can assure them, as far as my knowledge goesand it is not small—they are much mistaken. Surely'it is reasonable for the members of the Board themselves to move in the matter of change and reform. In accepting a position on the Board and its accompanying remuneration, they have a duty to the shareholders and themselves to carry out, and I greatly doubt if any one of them could conscientiously say it would be inadvisable to let as much light in on the affairs of any public institution as was possible. We live in a progressive age, and the argument that "whatever is is best" is a poor one. Surely the Management are not like the proverbial ostrich, which buries its head in the sand, &c., and imagine that because they hide the gross carnings, the expenses, &c., shareholders do not know that these are immense! At the same time they ought to know that the shareholderswho, by the bye, are by no means all contained to grumble at necessary expenses; however big Sir, our true policy is to court the light, and can only hope that the Directors in their next report, will conform to this proposition. .I amas certain as a man can be of anything, that if they do so, in spite of shareholders in the past having accepted their accounts, as presented, without demur, there will be not one who will not welcome the new departure. Sir, I have trespassed too long already on your space and patience, but if you can indulge me, I would not let this opportunity pass of touching on some points in connection with the well-being I refer to the advisability of an increase in the Bank's Capital, and a subdivision of the shares. With regard to the first, I am a believer in a great development of trade in the Far East in the near future; the fringe only of this huge Empire has been touched, and with the opening up of the country, railways, and all that wil follow in their train, which must come, we shall see a development which will simply astonish the pessimists. It should be the wisdom of the Bank to provide for and even anticipate these wants, and so, above all, to avoid opposition, I want to see the Bank not only retaining everyabsurd for the Bank to throw away its advantages, great, undoubted, at present. may be urged, by some, that the Bank has as much business of a certain kind-advances-as it wants. I do not think so : a large and very safe business of this nature has gone to the Chartered Bank, and, in a smaller degree, to the could be made very advantageously to the Bank's present reserves.

Sir, to my mind, the conclusion of thinking at the meetings, instead of growling would be far better for all concerned. I am a strong advocate for a free and independent expression of opinion, which need not be either meant or taken for aggression, and I sincerely hope that in the future we shall get a little more of it than we have had in the past. THE MANILA LOTTERY.

The Governor-General of the Philippines has issued the fresh rules for the Manila Lottery. The drawings in future will be as follows :- For January, February, April, May, July, August, September, October, and November, there will be 45,000 tickets issued, and the following prizes offered—one of $45,000, one of $20,000, one of $5,000, ten of $1,000, and smaller ones, aggregating $168,750. For March, there will be only 30,000 tickets, and the big prize will consist of $30,000, with a second of $12,000, one of $5,000, and smaller ones amounting to $112,500, in all. In June there will be double drawing, 30,000 tickets at $10 each being issued. The first prize will be $60,000, the second $24,000, the third $10,000, five of $2,000, and. the total will reach $225,000. In December 40,000 double tickets will be issued, when the mizes will be $80,000, $30,000, $20,000, $10,000, five $2,000, twenty-five at $1000, altogether $300,000.—We fervently hope that the infernal swindle will be let alone as far as Hongkong is concerned. This Colony and Singapore are half-keeping the Philippine Archipelago going, financially. The wonder is how such a huge fraud is tolerated for a moment. Tickets here sell at from $5.50 to $6.50 each, but, granting that the authorities who issue them only get $5 each, even then, on the ordinary drawings first mentioned, they rake in $225,000, and only return $168,750 to the public. On the small March drawing, they not $37,500, and on that in June $75,000, whilst they actually absorb one-quarter of the entire receipts in December-one hundred thousand dollars. Simply looking at it as a business speculation, it is not tempting. And there is a good deal of "snivvy pidgin," as we heard a lady call it, in regard to the issue of the tickets A ring of Chinese and Spynish capitalists have a way of buying the lot up, and then retailing them at an advance, say, of twenty cents. : 40,000 twenty cents are remunerative. It is not very long since several thousand tickets were taken back from Hongkong to sell in Manila, there being none obtainable there. As to the drawing itself, that is quite fair. It takes place in the open square, in the early morning. There are two glass barrels, one containing marbles on which the amounts of the various prizes are painted, and the other containing marbles numbered up to thirty or forty thousand, as the case may be. These are placed on a platform. and, after being well shaken, by an ingenious arrangement one marble is automatically drawn from each, through a glass tube, and held up and read by a little naked Indian boy. Once an official tried to pull the wires, and did actually get the big prize, we understand, but the same party is at present repairing the roads of the city, on a twelve years contract. To return to our muttons, however, we strongly recommend the punters who usually risk a fiver on the drawing to just consider whether the odds are good enough. A little judicious boycotting ought to put another $10,000 on the big prizes all round, and the little ones are not by any means too numerous. Moral, don't buy.

A CHINESE CANNIBAL.

A gruesome story comes from Peking, which for cold-blooded atrocity could hardly be matched. In the district town of Pang Ko Chuang lived a man named Tung, who, with his wife and mother, earned a living by cultivating a small piece of ground. Tung bore the reputation of being an exceedingly cruel and passionate man, and, especially when drunk, was held in abject terror by his own mother and wife. To make up for this, however, his wife was very dutiful in her treatment of her mother-in-law. Tung had a son a few months old, for whom he had an affection similar to that of a tigress for her young. One day his mother took this child out for an 'airing, and accidentally let him fall in such a way that injuries resulted which caused death. Terrified at the mishap, she wanted to commit suicide in order to escape the wrath of her son; but finally was induced to desist from this mad intention through the entreaties of her daughterin law. That night when Tung came, he was other Home Banks, and, as their Directors more | fortunately considerably the worse for liquor and and more see the profitable nature of this, more | did not inquire for his son and heir as was his and more of their funds will be available. I want usual custom, when sober. At midnight, while to see our Bank securing this, and by so doing yet under the influence of the samshu, he was not only not forcing constituents away, but dis- awakened by his wife, who told him that their couraging all idea of the formation of another | child had just died of the croup, and that, in local Bank. Do not let those who cannot go the | order to save the expenses of a funeral, it would length I do make the mistake of ignoring those | be better to bury the remains in their back-yard, possibilities, nay, probabilities : they are real, This was accordingly done, and nothing unusual for, as I said before, greater facilities are occurred; but shortly afterwards, the neighbors demanded and must be had, and, great as have | began to talk (as they always will about affairs been the changes and additions to business; of | which don't concern them) and the true cause of all sorts in the past, it is my belief there will be | the death of the child, came to the cars as many in the future. I am not one of those of this monster in human form. Having taxed who so easily condemn all fresh business, for his mother with killing his son, he would have instance, in shares. Undoubtedly there is gam- murdered her then and there if he had not been bling, and always will be, but it should never be forced to desist by those very neighbors forgotten that there has been an enormous in- | who had been instrumental in causing all the flux of capital brought in by the Chinese and trouble. The next day Tung told his mother others of late years for the purposes of trade, in | that some relations wanted to see her in the next vestment and speculation, most, of which are town, on some paltry pretence or other. Not worked on margins only. I say that there are suspecting anything, the old woman, accom-I would suggest that another $2,500,000 be home, put them into a pot to boil, and then should be the province of the Board to look into, the ghoulish repast he anticipated. In the meanwhile his wife, who was out in the fields at the time, returned, and smelling something unusual in the kitchen went there and lifting up The necessity for subdividing the shares is I the lid of the cooking pot, beheld to her horror think apparent. It is for these changes and reforms until they are after the inhuman matricide, whom they found had returned with his samshu and was ransack.

hard struggle, and now lies under sentence of Ling Ch'i-the slicing process, about which so much has been said and written. But in this particular case, an addition has been made to the customary form of punishment. After Mr. Tung has been scientifically sliced, and before life is extinct, he will be nailed to the ton of his coffin, and placed in the open air until death comes to his relief.

THE TYPHOON.

GREAT DAMAGE AT WENCHOW.

From our Shanghai exchanges we learn that the typhoon of the 20th ult., which Dr. Dobe-ck reported as having entered the southern part of the Formosa Channel, struck Wenchow, on the northern side of the Channel. The Mercur says that the C. M. S. N. Co.'s steamship Haeching, which arrived from Wenchow on the 29th ult., reports a terrific typhoon at that place on the 22nd inst. The country all round was several feet under water, and the people whose houses were flooded were drowned in great numbers. Numerous junks, were during the night driven from their anchorage, and blown inland half a mile or more. Outside there were a great many native craft wrecked and their crews drowned. Dead bodies were continually carried down the river there, and greatest distress prevailed amongst the people along its banks. On her way up the Haeching passed several dead bodies, evidently of junkmen. She was fortunate in being safe at anchor during the worst part of the storm, which was one of the worst her officers ever experienced. She sustained no damage, though she dragged her anchor a little, and did not hear of any mishap to any foreign vessel.

"A passenger, in account of the storm, says :-At 6 p.m. the wind blew with typhoon force from the N.N.W., with blinding rain up to 10 p.m. when it lulled down to dead calm, and we found that the steamer, having dragged close to the bank to the southward of the White Rock, and the sea breaking close to the steamer, during the full, which lasted for about 30 minutes, Capt. Danielsen had the anchor hove up and steamed out into the channel and dropped both anchors with 60 faths, chain. In letting go the starboard anchor, and after some strain getting on to the chain, it snapped, and we then had to trust to the port anchor and chain. 'At midnight, the wind blew with terrific force from the S.S.W., with blinding rain and sea breaking over the vessel steam was then ordered and she steamed against sea and wind with 75 fathom of chain out, but unfortunately the vessel stranded at about s.m. on the mud bank south of Hutau Island. and she bumped for about an hour, with sea breaking over the deck. At about 5 a.m. the flood made and the vessel was got off into deep water; pumps sounded no water in the hold. Still weather very thick, and heavy rain, so that we could not proceed up river before 4 p.m.of the same day, and anchored at the Lower Anchorage for the night; and left for Wenchow next morning, the 24th, and anchored off the Stilement at 8 a.m. I may mention that I have never seen such a terrific gale in all my travels, though having been to sea, for many years, and experienced many typhoons in the China Sea; the rain was blinding and the gusts of wind were like thunder, and we had to get about the deck on hands and knees. Although we were sheltered by Hutau Island to the northward and shallow banks to the southward, still the sea was high and breaking over the vessel, and washing things about the deck and cabins. Great praise is due to Captain Danielsen and his able officers for the seamanlike way in which they managed the steamer, and for all comforts meted out to the passengers. On going up Wenchow river we saw lots of wreckage all the way up to Wenchow, and the banks of the river showed and many others damaged by the typhoon.

The N. C. Daily News says :- The steamer Pollux which left Hongkong for Vladivostock on the 18th, was outside Ningpo with the signal of distress flying when the Klangteen passed out on the 28th. Captain Pratt communicated with with the Pollux, and her captain said he wanted to go into Ningpo, on which Captain Pratt told in that he had better wait till morning.

There is no news as yet of the Yokohama Maru, and she was 96 hours out at to deter her from proceeding on her voyage. ing 30th to look for the missing steamer, provided no news of her is previously received, and the Hever is being sent on the same errand by, and at Sambas, and the former are said to exist the Nippon Yusen Kaisha. On Sunday evenigg | in the central mountains of Borneo. at Nagasaki, the barometer was down to 20.35 and there was a strong E.N.E. gale blowing, while the weather signal indicated that there was a typhoon south travelling N.E. and this was still up when the Carmarihenshirs left. The Yokohama Maru was very deep when she left. Between the hours of 8 p.m. and midnight of Monday, the . Carmarthenshire passed a' steamer bound the same way as herself, but she did not show any signals of distress, so the "Shire" boat kept on her course.

vicinity of Sambas. There is a mountain called remarkable dark reddish colour, abounding with family is connected. the richest veins of gold, and equal, if not superior, to any mine extant. There are only fifty parets or mines now wrought in the whole kingdom of Sukadana, thirty of which are in the Sambas district, each mine having at least three hundred men (Chinese) employed in them. Their pay, one with another, is four dollars per mensem. The mines are rented from the Rajsh at the rate of fifty bunkals of gold per mine per annum, besides a capitation tax of three dollars per head on every Chinaman. There are thirty thousand Chinese in the Sambas districts, and they feel themselves strong enough to oppose or evade this tax... It hence becomes a perpetual contest between greedy extertion on the one side, and avaricious chica-thousand Malays, and Dayors (Dyaks); cularly rich and productive. The mines of - Advi.

Siminis are one day's journey from Sambas river, below the town, and the mines are abundant. Salako is up a river fifteen miles south of the Sambas river; it lies nearly forty miles up, but communicates with Sambas by another river; here the metal is found more abundant than anywhere else, and twenty thousand Chinese are found in this district. Montrade in three days' journey up the Mompawa river it is under an independent Malay prince. Some accounts make the population of this district great, nearly fifty thousand Dayers, Malays' and Chinese, but perhans half the number may be nearer the truth. These are chiefly employed on the gold mines, and in preducing food for the miners; these mines, however, do not produce that quantity which they might under Chinese Mandore is about a day's journey from Pontianak, and belongs to the Sultan. It is reckoned a very rich mine, though but recently wrought. There are as ye only twelve pareis of about two hundred men each, but it is capable of extension. Likewise are found in this district some very rich specimens of copper ore; it has not as yet been worked wrought gold being deemed a much more productive article. The Sultan wishes, however, he had some boring utensils and an experienced miner to enable him to decided whether it would be worth working under the peculiar circumstances above mentioned. Numbers of Chinese are settled in this district, and the population is annually increasing.

About three days' journey up the Pongole river lies the district of Songo, with a population of twenty-five thousand souls, Dayers, and a few Chinese, under a Malay and independent prince. The population is chiefly employed on the rich mines of gold in the neighbourhood, which is particularly pure and abundant; but the mines are not wrought with the same industry as those under Chinese management. The Dutch thought it of so much consequence, as to keep a force at Songo and to place the present rajah on the

About 2 days' journey futher up, lie another gold district, called Santam, the inhabitants of which are also Dayers. Beyond Santam, and higher up on the same river, lies the town Sukadow, abounding in gold, the inhabitants of which Matan belongs to a rajah of that name; he had the title of rajah of Sukadana until driven out of the latter place by the Dutch; seventeen years There are ten thousand Dayers in this district, and a few Chinese and Malays. The mines of go'd are abundant, and capable of becoming highly productive, as well as the mines of iron and unwrought tin, but the Sultan is much addicted to the use of opium, and hence neglects a valuable country, capable, under better management, of becoming the most valuable district in all Borneo.

About three days' journey from Pontianak lies the celebrated island of Landa, which, after Golconda, is the most valuable diamond mine. There are at least thirty thousand people, principally Dayers, employed in the mines and agriculture; it belongs to a Malay prince raised to that mustud twenty-five years ago by the Dutch, through the agency of the present Sultan of Pontianak. Here also much gold is produced, and more might be under proper management.

There is a very valuable gold mine in North of Borneo at a place called Tampasuk, situated in the district ceded to the English by the Sultan of Sulu, but having become the principal pirate port on the coast, the working of the mines has been discontinued.

The whole production of the gold mines in Sukadana is said to be annually about 20 piculs, or a million of dollars, at twenty-five dollars a bunkal; but no calculation of this sort can possibly be correct. Living as the Chinese do, under the rapacity of despotic and ferocious freebooters who are actuated by no principle indications of heavy sea and strong wind-as of honor, justice, or good faith, it is their interest various houses was more or less damaged. It to conceal the riches they amass, not only to is reported that over 20 native crafts are sunk | preserve themselves from the clutches of these tyrants, but as the most compact substance to transport to their native shores, to which they repair with the fruits of their industry by the annual junks that arrived at Pontianak, leaving the mines to new settlers; from two to three hundred leave Pontianak every year.

The standard of Slakow gold at Pontianak is affixed at 23 Spanish dollars the bunkal, of 2 dollars weight. The Songo and Laurat is $25 to the said bunkil. . Not having had an opportunity of inspecting 6 p.m. yesterday (29th). The most remarkable circumstance connected with Mattan is that the rajah possesses the finest and largest diamond in the world, which has hitherto been discovered. This diamond, which is said to be of the finest water, weight 367. carats. The celebrated Pitt diamond weighs only 127 carats. The Mattan diamond is shaped like an egg, with an indented hollow near the smaller end. It was discovered at Landak about 90 years ago, and though the possession of it has occasioned numerous wars, it has been about 80 years in the possession of the Mattan family. Many years ago, the Governor of Batavia, sent a Mr. Stuvart to ascertain the weight, quality, and value of this The following interesting account of the diamond, and to endeavour to purchase it and in this mission he was accompanied by the present Sultan of Pontianak.
